

Git and Github

Assignment-04

1.git version is the command which is used to check the version of the git.

2.git config is used to initialize a new git repository.

3.git config is the command to identify the name and email.

4.git add is used to send the code from workspace to staging area.

5.git rm

6.git commit command is used to commit operations.

7.#open github.com

#create a new repository and enter your name and click create repository.

#to perform push operation we need some commands

git branch -M main git remote add again

git push -u origin main

8.git clone is used to clone the file to the working directory of the developer.

Git push is used to push from local repository to remote repository.